Another Way of Telling explores the tension between the photographer and the photographed, between the picture and its viewers, between the filmed moment and the memories that it so resembles. Combining the moral vision of the critic and the practical engagement of the photographer, Berger and Moher have produced a work that expands the frontiers of criticism first charged by Walter Benjamin, Roland Barthes, and Susan Sontag. Another Way of Telling is a truly original marriage of word and image. John Berger, writer, and Jean Mohr, photographer, explore both mediums and how they work together and why we are so captivated by documentary work, which could otherwise be just snapshots. Berger uses the example of a found, anonymous portrait of a man with a horse to illustrate the decisive moment the
